1837 Tunnel

In 1837 George Stephenson was asked to survey and supervise the construction of the North Midland Railway where he came upon Clay Cross nestling on a foothill of Derbyshire's Peak District. Whilst cutting the Clay Cross Tunnel He discovered a rich seam of coal and Iron deposits. Stephenson exploited these finds by buying land and forming the Clay Cross Company and later by sinking a colliery. Over 400 houses were built for the miners, employees of the iron foundry and their families and the small village quickly grew into a small industrial town. Clay Cross Tunnel is still in use and is now part of the Midland Mainline Railway. The North portal is a magnificent Moorish design which is now a grade 2 listed building and is depicted on the front of our bottle. George Stephenson died in 1848 and is buried in Holy Trinity Church in the nearby town of Chesterfield where he lived the last years of his life. Our distillery is situated directly above the tunnel between ventilation shafts 1 and 2. We hope our Gin is a fitting tribute to the great man who engineered the birth of our town.

KOSKENKORVA

The people of the Finnish village of Koskenkorva have been doing things differently since 1953.

Koskenkorva's flavoured vodkas are inspired by Scandinavian foraging traditions, craft distilled with the essence of this Finnish village's surrounding landscapes.
